Conference Description

This is the ninth triennial conference on cancer in American Indians and Alaska Natives. The NCI Community Networks Program: "Spirit of EAGLES" has its research base within the Mayo Clinic's Comprehensive Cancer Program with Dr. Judith Kaur as the PI. As with the past eighth conferences, Mayo faculty and nationally prominent researchers in American Indian and Alaska Native (AI/AN) health give reviews of new developments in prevention, screening, and treatment strategies. Registration has increased each time we have held this conference and attracts clinicians, researchers, students, policymakers, and patient advocates.

Audience

The intended audience for this conference includes community members and leaders, survivors/thrivers, advocates, researchers, health care providers, policy makers, and others working with Native populations.

Approximately 300 participants are expected to attend this conference.

Conference Topics

- Prevention
- Early detection and screening
- Cultural Sensitivity
- Tobacco Issues
- Policy
- Survivorship
- Palliative Care
- Quality of Life
- Understanding Cancer Statistics and Registries
- Community Partnerships
- HPV Vaccine and related issues
- Colorectal Cancer
- Diet and physical activity
- Wellness activities
- End-of-life

Colossal Colon Tour/Exhibit

The Colossal Colon promises to get everyone talking about colorectal cancer—the first step in eliminating the disease. Adults and children alike can crawl through or walk around the "colon" to learn the differences between a healthy and unhealthy colon.
