MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Alumni of Mayo School of Health Sciences,

I hope you are planning to attend the annual alumni association dinner program on Friday, April 27! This is a wonderful opportunity to reconnect with classmates and program directors, as well as a chance to network with peers in a casual setting away from your work-a-day world. There is no cost for the evening.

The social media revolution is the defining communications trend of the third millennium. From blogs to Facebook to Twitter to YouTube, the power of worldwide broadcasting and publishing is now available to anyone. In his presentation, Lee Aase, will share how Mayo progressed naturally from traditional media relations to direct-to-consumer news delivery to conversational marketing, giving patients a platform for their stories.

The MSHSAA Recognition of Outstanding Contribution Award will be presented and Caren Hughes will be installed as the new President.

I look forward to seeing you on April 27!

Cordially,
Jerrod Ernst, President, MSHSAA

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Lee A. Aase

Lee is director of the Mayo Clinic Center for Social Media, a first-of-its-kind social media center focused on health care, which builds on Mayo Clinic's leadership among health care providers in adopting social media tools. Mayo Clinic has the most popular medical provider channel on YouTube and active, popular outposts on Twitter and Facebook. Mayo Clinic is a pioneer in hospital blogging, and has recently launched an online community for patients at <http://connect.mayoclinic.org/> and a heart health awareness campaign at <http://knowyournumbers.me/>. Prior to joining Mayo Clinic in 2000, Lee spent more than a decade in political and government communications at the local, state and federal level.
