(Break to be announced)
Select speakers from ALHHS and MeMA

4:00 – 4:30 p.m.
Discussion on How to Exhibit, Store and Handle “Hidden” Toxic Materials in History of Medicine Collections
Dale Krageschmidt and Jeff Nesbitt, Mayo Industrial Hygienists
Historians of medicine and health have become increasingly interested in the national and global history of food safety and regulation, as well as the history of food-related illnesses, whether caused by deficiencies, surfeits or chemical additives. The mainstream media have been taking up many of the same issues, with bestselling books by Pollan and Schlosser, and popular films like “Super Size Me” and “King Corn.” This panel discussion will survey the history and prospects for the field; we will discuss the popular fervor over food, health and the environment, and the shifting regulatory environment in the United States. Does history offer any insight into how January’s Supreme Court decision on campaign finances is likely to reshape corporate agriculture’s ability to shape food regulation? What role should progressive historians of medicine play in public education and agenda-setting around food and health?

GENERAL INFORMATION

Course Objectives

Upon conclusion of this program, participants should be able to:

• Describe new research findings in the history of medicine.
• Describe the changing image of caregivers during the 19th and 20th centuries.
• Describe how the government has influenced health care during the 20th century.
• Describe the changing role of institutions in health care delivery during the 20th century.

Intended Audience

The target audience includes a broad range of scholars who research and write on a range of issues. Attendees will be impressed by the diversity of topics discussed and the spectrum of research techniques employed to investigate hypotheses, frame arguments and draw conclusions. Although most of the presentations will be delivered by academic historians, the talks do not include jargon or require specialized knowledge as might be the case with a program devoted (for example) to genomics or echocardiography. The themes addressed are comprehensible to all health care providers, making the content and conclusions accessible to the participants regardless of their main professional identity.

Continuing Education Credit

College of Medicine, Mayo Clinic, is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

College of Medicine, Mayo Clinic, designates this educational activity for a maximum of 17.75 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

CME Record of Attendance

A Record of Attendance is provided with on-site registration materials. The Record of Attendance allows course attendees to calculate their own credits of participation in the educational activity.

The total number of credits participants can earn per day is noted on the Record of Attendance. Below each day is a line to record the actual number of credits during which you participated in the educational activity. It is recommended that you record your actual credits daily as you proceed through the course.
Upon conclusion of the course, please total the number of credits you have recorded on the top half of the form, sign it and return it with your course evaluation to the registration desk.

The bottom half of the form represents your Record of Attendance, which you must retain for your records. Please make sure the number of credits claimed in both sections coincide.

Course Evaluation

A complete evaluation will be distributed electronically after the course. Your feedback is very important to us and will be used for planning future programs.

Smoking Policy

In keeping with Mayo Clinic policy, smoking is not permitted in any of the meeting rooms or course facilities during Mayo-sponsored activities.

Taping of Sessions

Audio or visual taping by participants is not permitted.

Electronic Devices

As a courtesy to other attendees, please turn off or place in silent mode all cell phones, pagers, PDA’s, laptop computers, etc.

Disclaimer

The material presented in this continuing medical education program is made available by the College of Medicine, Mayo Clinic, for educational purposes only. This material is not intended to represent the only, or necessarily the best, methods or procedures appropriate for the medical situation discussed, but rather is intended to present an approach, view, statement or opinion of the authors or presenters that may be helpful or of interest to other practitioners. As an attendee, you agree to participate in this medical education program sponsored by the College of Medicine with full knowledge and awareness that you waive any claim you may have against the College of Medicine or Mayo Clinic for reliance on any information presented in this educational program. The approval of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration is required for procedures and drugs that are considered experimental. Instrumentation systems discussed and/or demonstrated in or at this program may not yet have received FDA approval.
