Description
The seronegative spondyloarthropathies comprise a group of related inflammatory arthropathies that share some common features yet are unique clinical entities. This program will utilize a case-based approach to address these important disorders. The clinical features and systemic complications of the spondyloarthropathies – ankylosing spondylitis, reactive arthritis, psoriatic arthritis, and inflammatory bowel disease-associated arthritis – will be discussed. Diagnostic tests, including imaging and laboratory testing techniques, will be elucidated. Advances in treatment offered by newer biologic agents will be covered.

Learning Objectives
After participating in this interactive teleconference, participants will be able to:
- Diagnose patients with seronegative arthropathies
- Identify systemic features of the spondyloarthropathies
- Discuss the role of MRI in the diagnosis of the ankylosing spondylitis
- Describe therapeutic options for patients with spondyloarthropathies

Who Should Attend
This conference is appropriate for clinicians, pathologists, laboratory directors, nurses, medical technologists, and other allied-health professionals.
