COURSE DESCRIPTION
Heart failure is a devastating disease that causes debilitating symptoms and excess mortality. It affects more than 9.5 million people in this country, with over 680,000 new cases diagnosed each year. Despite best efforts, more than one-third of patients with heart failure are re-hospitalized within weeks of hospital discharge. Certainly as our population ages, the number of patients afflicted with this disease will grow. The economic burden now exceeds 10 billion dollars, and is forecasted to grow.

It is essential that heart failure is recognized promptly and proven therapies are applied to manage this chronic disease. Healthcare providers play a pivotal role in the care of these patients. Using a case-based approach, this course will enhance the attendees' confidence in caring for these challenging patients.

COURSE LEARNING OBJECTIVES
Upon conclusion of this program, participants should be able to:

- Recognize the clinical syndrome of heart failure and who is at risk
- Explain typical diagnostic testing essential for diagnosis and management of heart failure
- Apply appropriate pharmacologic and non-pharmacologic strategies for patients across the spectrum of heart failure
- Describe when referral for advanced heart failure therapies is indicated
- Describe treatment strategies to manage symptoms when conventional therapies have been exhausted
- Demonstrate complex decision-making when co-morbidities co-exist

Attendance at this Mayo course does not indicate nor guarantee competence or proficiency in the performance of any procedures which may be discussed or taught in this course.

INTENDED AUDIENCE
This course is appropriate for nurse practitioners, physician assistants, registered nurses, and primary care providers interested in an update on heart failure.

CREDIT
Mayo Clinic College of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

Mayo Clinic College of Medicine designates this live activity for a maximum of 16 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
