COURSE HIGHLIGHTS

- Leading experts give keynote presentations and conduct roundtable discussions and experiential workshops
- Focus on evidence-based processes to identify and address bias as it affects patient care, health equity and the workforce
- Participants examine their own knowledge and beliefs on diversity and inclusion and gain insights into the rationale and importance of creating a culture of inclusion for employees and our patients
- New skills and processes that reduce bias and increase recruitment, retention, promotion and development of women and minorities are explored

TARGET AUDIENCE

Individuals interested in advancing health equity and diversity and inclusion in health care, including those involved in direct patient care (e.g., physicians, scientists, nurses, social workers), talent acquisition and workforce development (e.g., HR professionals, hiring managers, supervisors), hospital leadership and administrators, and diversity and inclusion practitioners.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Summarize the effects of socioeconomic factors, race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation and other patient characteristics on health inequities and identify ways to mitigate them in your own practice or organization
- Describe the effect of patient and provider biases on healthcare outcomes; describe ways to mitigate the effect of these biases
- Summarize policies and practices that have been shown to contribute to inclusive workplace environments, and enhance recruitment, development, advancement and retention of women and minorities in the healthcare workforce
- Apply course learnings to create a more welcoming healthcare environment and improve the delivery of culturally appropriate care for increasingly diverse patients populations
- Develop and empower employee resource groups to support personal and organizational strategic goals related to diversity and inclusion and health equity
