COURSE DESCRIPTION
This three-day conference will address a variety of health issues that are unique to women and/or highlight medical conditions that may cause different symptoms in women, or affect women differently than men, and thus, may require different treatment or prevention protocols. Issues such as: cardiovascular health, breast health, issues in menopause, cancer care, infectious disease and system-based medical disorders in women. The course format will include evidence-based and case-based presentations, use of interactive keypads and Q & A panel discussions with faculty.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
Upon completion of this activity, participants should be able to:

• Identify strategies to improve risk assessment for cardiovascular diseases in women.
• Review epidemiology transmission and risk reduction strategies for Zika Virus in women of reproductive age.
• Evaluate new therapies for the treatment of Multiple Sclerosis in women.
• Review management strategies for recurrent UTIs in women.
• Compare different dietary regimes to optimize weight management.
• Explain preventative therapy options for women at a high risk for breast cancer.
• Identify pharmacologic agents that can reduce women’s level of risk for breast cancer.
