COURSE DESCRIPTION
The Practical Surgical Pathology conference addresses common but difficult diagnostic problems encountered by the pathologist in everyday practice. Every effort is made to present cases of common practical value. Participants and faculty will review case histories, examine case images, and formulate the diagnosis. The unique subtleties and differentiating characteristics of each diagnosis are then highlighted. Faculty and participants will also discuss the patient management strategy used in each case. Images of all cases presented are provided on a DVD to be viewed by virtual microscopy following the program.

The program format features multiple specialty areas each day. Throughout the two and one-half days of the conference, 32 cases are presented and discussed. Audience participation is strongly encouraged.

The following specialty areas are selected for discussion:
- Bone
- Breast
- Cardiovascular
- Cytology
- Cytopathology
- Dermatopathology
- Head and Neck
- Endocrine
- Forensics
- Gastrointestinal
- Genitourinary
- Gynecology
- Hematopathology
- Neuropathology
- Pulmonary
- Soft Tissue

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
Upon completion of the conference participants should be able to:
- Identify common diagnostic problems of pathologies selected for study
- Interpret appropriate ancillary tests for study cases
- Classify each case according to pathology type
- Enumerate the treatment options of each case diagnosis
- Integrate diagnostic, clinical, and pathological challenges in pathologist-clinician communication methods
