The second annual Cardiology in the Capital: Case-Based Clinical Decision Making course will review clinically relevant information regarding heart failure, arrhythmias, as well as ischemic, structural and vascular heart disease. The interactive, practice-based format includes case-presentations of common and controversial clinical dilemmas supported by state-of-the-art lectures in new and topical cardiovascular developments. The expert faculty will present material specifically designed to educate cardiologists, as well as internists or primary care providers, providing them with the most clinically relevant information regarding heart failure, arrhythmias, as well as ischemic, structural and vascular heart disease.

COURSE LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Upon conclusion of this program, participants should be able to:

- Identify diagnostic, clinical, and interventional options in the care of your cardiac patients with circulatory failure;
- Describe current interventional strategies for managing patients with valvular heart disease;
- Review current pharmacologic, non pharmacologic and anticoagulation strategies in patients with atrial fibrillation;
- Apply techniques to identify and treat patients with unique instances of coronary artery disease; and
- Summarize treatment of patients with hypertrophic cardiomyopathy.

Attendance at this Mayo course does not indicate nor guarantee competence or proficiency in the performance of any procedures which may be discussed or taught in this course.

INTENDED AUDIENCE

The intended audience includes cardiologists, internal medicine subspecialists, general internists, and other primary healthcare providers.
