JANUARY 16–20, 2018
IN COLLABORATION WITH
MOHAMMED BIN KHALIFA BIN SULMAN AL KHALIFA CARDIAC CENTRE
COURSE OVERVIEW
Mayo Clinic Cardiovascular Review: A Case-Based Approach will provide cardiologists and internists with an overview of many aspects of cardiovascular medicine in a case-based format to highlight practice dilemmas and key management strategies. Mayo Clinic faculty will provide in-depth, engaging lectures on state-of-the-art subjects in cardiovascular medicine with an interactive audience response system and question and answers with expert Mayo Clinic faculty. This comprehensive program will be a valuable educational opportunity to provide an update for the practicing provider with the latest clinical evaluation and management of patients encountered in daily practice.

COURSE LEARNING OBJECTIVES
- Describe how to evaluate and manage patients with valvular heart disease
- Describe how to diagnose and treat the patient with ischemic heart disease
- Develop a comprehensive approach to the clinical evaluation of patients with systolic and/or diastolic heart failure
- Interpret common ECG tracings and cardiac arrhythmias
- Describe treatment options for rhythm control in atrial fibrillation
- Recognize common problems that adults with congenital heart disease might face

INTENDED AUDIENCE
This program will provide cardiologists, internists, fellows-in-training and cardiovascular care associates with an overview of all aspects of cardiovascular medicine.
